CONNECTICUT ASSOCIATION STANDING. Well! Well! Well! Willimantic at

Well! Well! Well! Willimantic at last wen another game at home and jumped into the leading position again by defeating Humphrey's Whalers of New London in a good fast and interesting game by the score of 2-1 on Tuesday afternoon.

The bleacherites to the number of 200 or so and the 75 people in the grandstand on Windham field were mightily well satisfied with the final result. The game was a corker to witness from the start and there was no wrangling to mar the contest to speak of. Umpire Curran was right on his job and held the game well in hand at all stages.

at all stages.

Features of the game were the fine battery work of both teams, the fine fielding of D'Andrea and the hitting of Richmeyer and Shaun Sullivan.

Doyle had fine control of the ball and did not issue a pass and kent the hit.

Doyle had fine control of the ball and did not issue a pass and kept the hits well scattered aside from the almost fatal eighth, when a bunch of four hits tallied a run for New London that tied up the score. Phillips pitched a fairly steady game.

At the opening of the ninth New London went out in order, and John Nichols, first up for Willimantic, sent an easy grounder to Burns, who threw him out at first. O'Mara played foxy and was hit by a pitched ball. Farrell drew a pass and Petrick was the man of the hour when he slammed out a cracking two bagger on a line over of the hour when he slammed out a cracking two bagger on a line over third base that went rolling almost to the fence and scored Shaun Sullivan, who was running for O'Mara, with the winning run and but one down.

GET THE PITCHER'S GOAT. Lesson for Modern Batters in the Grim Front of the Old Time Sluggers.

One thing that seems evident to an old timer is this: That the modern batsmen in most cases do not try to get the pitcher's goat the way the veterans did. The vets were more terrible by far when it came to facing a hurier. Today there are a few goat getters, but not many. The grim and massive front put up by Wagner, Crawford and Lajoie scares many a pitcher, while the confidence and mocking eagerness of Cobb also scares them. These fellows act as the old timers did, but most of the modern batsmen simply stand at the plate in a half apologetic way, hoping against hope that they may scratch out a single or draw a base on balls.

Twenty years ago it was an impressive scene when Anson, Brouthers or Pete Browning came to bat with the bases full. These giants of the game toted up huge bats of bulk and dented fiber—dented by the impact of a hundred mighty drives. They gazed upon the pitchers with a grim smile, a look of total confidence, with absolute belief in their own superiority, and the pitchers facing these monoliths of the game felt, in a word, just as the batsmen do today in front of Brown. There will never be any rattling singing against the confident and assertive modern pitchers until the modern batsmen go after the stabmen's goats the against the confident and assertive modern pitchers until the modern batsmen go after the stabmen's goats the way Anson and Browning did and the way Cobb and Wagner do today.

Don't go up there as if you were begging the pitcher's pardon. Don't go up wondering if you can get anywhere near a spitball or an outbreaking curve.

Drag up a big stick, haw-haw coarsely at the man upon the slab, and don't hit like a gentle darling. If you are a free swinger, blaze away at one as though you were sinking the axe in a tree. Even though you miss you are likely to impress the pitcher. If you are a short, choppy batter of the Keeler style, snap the bat at one with all the speed and quickness you can muster. The pitcher will be worried then, and the moment you get the worry transferred from your ego to his you have him going. Confidence is everything. The modern pitcher is chuck full of confidence, gally as a yeggman, contemptuously boastful. The modern batter, or 70 per cent. of him, is afraid even to look mean at the pitcher. But batter, or 70 per cent. of him, is afraid even to look mean at the pitcher. But there is nobody who will go up in the air so quickly as a pitcher when you get him stung—there is no goat so easy to capture as that of the pitcher, if you only show a little nerve.

"SILK" FANCIES TY COBB,

"Strike Tuh!" Names Him for the Greatest Ever-Better Every Season.

If you should ask Umpire "Silk" O'Loughlin who is the greatest ball player in the game, it's dollars to doughnuts he will say Ty Cobb.

"Two watched that fellow like a hawk for three years," says "Silk," "and he keeps getting better every season. At first the general run of outfielders figured that he was a crazy base runner and raid no particular. base runner, and paid no particular attention to him. After he had sneak-ed to second several times on singles ed to second several times on singles that were slovenly handled in the outfield, they changed their tune. Cobb never fails to round first on any old kind of a bit to the outfield. He sails around the bag at full steam, and is set for the sprint to second if there is a miscue anywhere. Let an outfielder kick or boot the ball, hesitate about returning it promptly, or loaf, and Tyrus is off for second. He sneaks many an extra base by his elertness. "Cobb slides feet first. Harry Niles is about the only player in the American league that goes into a bag headforemost. He takes an awful chance. Cobb has the prettlest slide in the world. He has his eye on the man who is going to take the throw, and dives world. He has his eye on the man who is going to take the throw, and dives away from him, throwing his foot at the cushion. You never heard of Wallace, Lajole or any veteran infielders getting hurt putting a ball on Cobb. They know how to tag him. Instead of going after him they wait for him to hit the dirt and then slip the ball on his foot as he shoves it at the bag. Any infielder who knows anything about putling a ball on a runner will never get hurt tagging Cobb."
